ANG 79211: Dissertation Seminar
This course is designed to support students in the dissertation-writing process. Its principal objectives are to facilitate the completion of the dissertation in a satisfying and timely fashion, to curb feelings of isolation and create a sense of community amongst doctoral candidates in the final stages of their program, and to guide students in their professional development as they begin to look forward to life beyond graduation. To these ends, in addition to sharing their work-in-progress, students will develop their skills writing research proposals, responding effectively to questions, presenting conference papers, relating research to pedagogy, and applying for jobs within academia and beyond.
